

ComGroup Australia Pty Ltd Company Profile

Australian Company

ComGroup Australia was formed when a management team buyout acquired the systems and service arms of Simoco Pacific.

Our company has a history in Radio Communications dating back to 1939. It is an independently owned Australian company with regional branches in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, Adelaide, Canberra and Perth.

Highly Flexible

ComGroup aims to set benchmarks of excellence in communication systems solutions. We are dedicated to building and supporting systems for a wide scope of applications.

The ability to make highly flexible, customer specific systems lies in ComGroup's capacity to design across a range of technologies, products, materials and standards.

Responsive Service

Our Nationwide Service organisation guarantees a "whole-of-life" support of implemented systems.

We are able to offer a personal, local service that is truly responsive to your needs.

Skilled Workforce

One of our major strengths in this industry is our ability to commit to the retention and development of professional staff who embrace customer satisfaction as their No.1 Priority.

We pride ourselves on the radio communication skills of our engineers, technicians and installers to enhance customer outcomes.

Capability and Expertise

ComGroup Australia has the experience to bring together every skill and technology involved in the design and implementation of radio communications systems.

We combine the local expertise of our branches with the skills of our specialist radio communications team to offer the most comprehensive range of services to our customers.
